

Try Try Again

Once upon a time, there was a little boy named Alex who loved to build things with blocks. Every day, he would try to build a tall tower, but it always ended up falling down.

Alex felt frustrated and wanted to give up. But his grandma, who was wise and kind, told him a story about a little bird learning to fly.

She said, "Once, there was a baby bird who fell out of its nest while trying to fly. The bird was scared and didn't want to try again. But its mama bird encouraged it, saying, Try try again!"

The baby bird listened to its mama and tried to fly again. It flapped its wings harder and harder until, finally, it soared into the sky.

Alex liked the story and decided to try building his tower again. He stacked the blocks carefully, but the tower still wobbled and fell.

Instead of giving up, Alex remembered the little bird and tried again. He focused on balancing the blocks and using stronger ones at the bottom.

After many tries, Alex finally built a tall tower that didn't fall down. He felt proud and happy that he didn't give up.

---

From that day on, whenever Alex faced a challenge, he remembered the little bird and his grandma's words: "Try, try again!"

And no matter how many times he failed, Alex kept trying until he succeeded.

The End.

Moral Lessons:

1. Persistence pays off.
  2. Resilience is key.
  3. Positive encouragement matters.
  4. Failure is an opportunity for growth.
  5. Believe in yourself.
-